

The Kissing Machine

Composed: Spring, 1960

words & music by Peter Tranchell

Fairly fast waltz-tempo      %

Voice

Piano

Now there once was a

6

V.

Pno.

man called Mac-Bean, who in-vent-ed a kiss-ing ma-chine. It was 13

V.

Pno.

rou-tine and nor-mal, and terr-i-bly for-mal, its kiss-es being

18

V.

Pno.

sweet, chaste and clean. The dear vi-car and cur-ate called in,

24

V. and it kissed them on cheek and on chin. It de-light-ed the cu-rate, he

Pno.

31

V. laud - ed its pur - i - ty "Kiss - es", he said, "void of sin!"

Pno.

36

V. But the vic-ar's wife had oth-er views. And she thought she would try out a Pno.

43

V. ruse. With the lips she would kiss it, then brand it il - lic-it. But the pru-dish ma-chine blew a

Pno.

51

V. fuse! But an en - gin - eer there to as - sist, gave the Pno.

57

V. gad - get a diff - er - ent twist. Some new cir - cuits he fash - ioned, which made it im -

Pno.

64

V. -passioned, so no - one knew how they'd be kissed! When tried out by the

Pno.

poco rit. a tempo

70

V. pret - ty Miss Gough, though at first she did no - thing but scoff, as its

Pno.

77

V. lips touched each tit, and then pressed on her slit, she for - got how to turn the thing off!

Pno.

84

V. A vir-ile young stu-dent called Best once switched the thing on for a test.

Pno.

92

V. When he'd pulled a few switch-es, 'twas in - side his bree-ches, and bu - sy with

Pno.

98

V. nigh hu-man zest! While Mac-Bean was a - way for a space, a young ted-dy-boy

Pno.

106

V. burgled the place. In the dark-ness he tripped, and a switch be-ing flipped, the ma-

Pno.

113

V.
 -chine caught him in its em - brace. It soon stripped and kissed all his phy-

Pno.

119

V.
 -sique; and his mouth got no chance for a shriek. It had

Pno.

125

V.
 now eight-een lips and some new-fang-led grips, and a vast-ly su - per-ior tech-nique.

Pno.

132

V. It got one of its knobs up his bum. And all ov-er him lips made a Pno.

139

V. scrum. The ma-chine was no slug-gard, it kissed, sucked and bug-gered, giv-ing ex-tra dou-

Pno.

146

V. -ceurs at each come! The next mor-ning Mac - Bean found the lad,

Pno.

152

V. who by now ump-teen times had been had, and whose fur-ther be - hav-iour in

Pno.

159 poco rit. a tempo

V.  thank-ing his sav-iour, showed stam-in-a not at all bad! And the se-quel to Pno.

166

V.  this, which ap-pears was their mu-tual dis-cov-ry as queers, is Mac-

Pno.

173

V.  -Bean keeps the boy in his con-stant em-ploy, and the ma-chine's not been switched on for

Pno.

179

V.  years! 8<sup>7</sup>

Pno. 