

The Kissing Machine

Composed: Spring, 1960

words & music by Peter Tranchell

Fairly fast waltz-tempo %

Voice

Piano

Now there once was a

6

V.

Pno.

man called Mac-Bean, who in-vent-ed a kiss-ing ma-chine. It was 13

V.

Pno.

rou-tine and nor-mal, and terr-i-bly for-mal, its kiss-es being

18

V.

Pno.

sweet, chaste and clean. The dear vi-car and cur-ate called in,

24

V. and it kissed them on cheek and on chin. It de-light-ed the cu-rate, he

Pno.

31

V. laud - ed its pur - i - ty "Kiss - es", he said, "void of sin!"

Pno.

36

V. But the vic-ar's wife had oth - er views. And she thought she would Pno.

42

V. try out a ruse. With the lips she would kiss it, then brand it il - lic-it. But the pru-dish ma-

Pno.

50

V. *ch*ine blew a fuse! But an en - gin - eer there to as - sist, gave the Pno.

57

V. gad - get a diff - er - ent twist. Some new cir - cuits he fash - ioned, which

Pno.

63 poco rit.

V. made it im - pas - sioned, so no - one knew how they'd be kissed! When tried

Pno.

69 a tempo

V. out by the pret - ty Miss Gough, though at first she did no - thing but scoff,

Pno.

76

V. as its lips touched each tit, and then pressed on her slit, she for - got how to

Pno.

82

V. turn the thing off! A vir-ile young stu-dent called Best once

Pno.

89

V. switched the thing on for a test. When he'd pulled a few switch-es, 'twas in-side his

Pno.

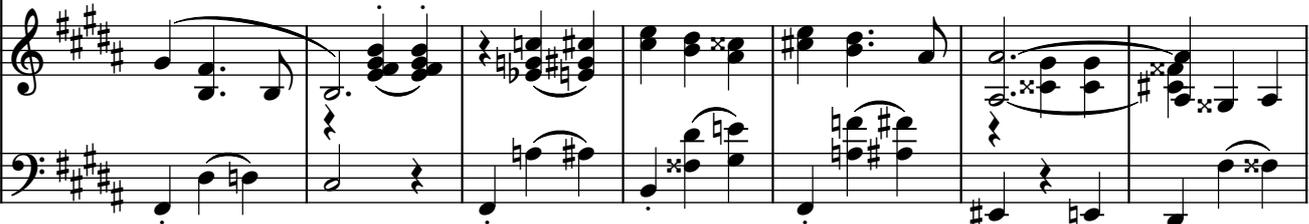

96

V. bree-ches, and bu - sy with nigh hu-man zest! While Mac-Bean was a -

Pno.

102

V.
 -way for a space, a young ted-dy-boy bur-gled the place. In the

Pno.

109

V.
 dark-ness he tripped, and a switch being flipped, the ma - chine caught him in its em-brace.

Pno.

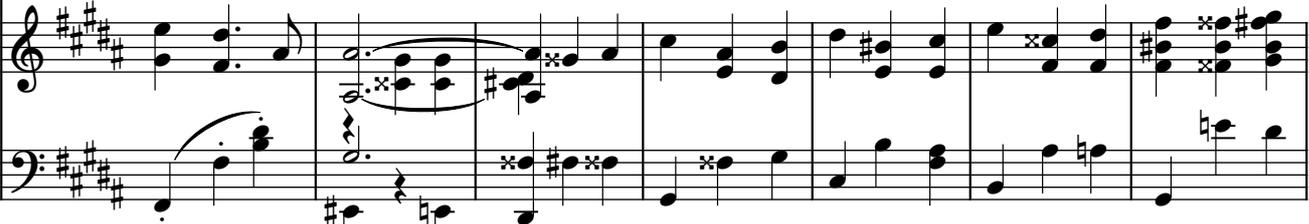

116

V.
 It soon stripped and kissed all his phy-sique; and his mouth got no

Pno.

122

V.
 chance for a shriek. It had now eight-teen lips and some new-fang-led grips, and a

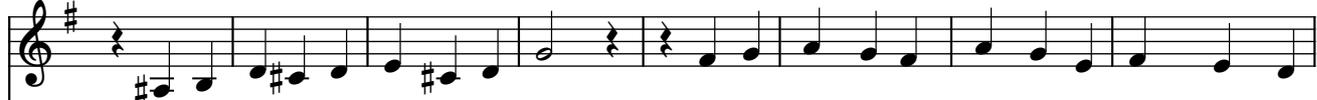

Pno.

129

V.
 vast-ly su - per-ior tech-nique. It got one of its knobs up his bum.

Pno.

136

V.
 And all ov-er him lips made a scrum. The ma-chine was no slug-gard, it kissed, sucked and Pno.

144

V.
 bugged, giv-ing ex - tra dou - ceurs at each come! The next mor - ning Mac -

Pno.

150

V.
 -Bean found the lad, who by now ump-teen times had been had,

Pno.

156

V. and whose fur-ther be - hav-iour in thank-ing his sav-iour, showed stam-in-a not at all

Pno.

163 poco rit. a tempo

V. bad! And the se-quel to this, which ap-pears was their mu-tual dis-

Pno.

170

V. -cov-ry as queers, is Mac-Bean keeps the boy in his con-stant em-

Pno.

176

V. -play, and the ma-chine's not been switched on for years!

Pno.